Wind tells the story of the weather. It tells us about the direction and speed of the wind. It also tells us about the temperature and humidity of the air. Wind is an important part of our environment and it plays a role in many natural processes.

Wind is caused by the uneven heating of the Earth's surface. The sun heats the land and water differently, and this causes the air to expand and contract. This creates pressure differences, and the air moves from high pressure to low pressure. This movement of air is what we call wind. Wind can be helpful, but it can also be destructive. It can cause storms and hurricanes, and it can damage buildings and crops.

The project is a part of the ongoing work of the Ministry of Environment, Water and Climate Change, aimed at promoting environmental awareness and sustainable development in the region. The project is implemented through a series of activities, including community meetings, field visits, and educational programs, to raise awareness and encourage responsible environmental management practices.

With the 100th anniversary as a major milestone, we will also highlight community-based organizations that have been instrumental in advancing the public health and environmental justice agenda. For more information, please visit www.epa.gov/100years.
